A Woman's Republican club is now an accomplished fact in the town of Killingy. It starts out with 54 members, but there is no reason to doubt that its membership will be five times as great by the time next fall's campaigning period rolls around. This can is organized to co-operate in all the activities of the spublican organization in Killingly. That it will be active and effective is in-feated by the onbustarm of those who tready have affiliated. Their interest is you based on hope of political reward, for women have not yet arrived at that case in politics where they are very generally rewarded for achievements in behalf of the party, or selected on their merits for some remunerative office. What they seek is the success of the paricular postetesi party in which their aith to founded and they give promise to lend it invaluable aid in coming cam-
